"What we lawyers need is not another committee, or another survey; we have too many unexecuted plans. We need action—political and administrative, which may not be had by filing reports of bar associations with the legislature, or by passing resolutions. It is time to tell the legislatures, the local authorities, the chiefs of police, the district attorneys, and the judges themselves, what must be done, and done promptly, if the people are to be safe in their homes and have justice in their courts."—Thomas Day Thatcher in The State Bar Journal.

Well, I have nothing but admiration for Mr. Thatcher's lofty purpose, and I trust he succeeds in telling the aforementioned public servants where to "get off at."

And now I have a bit of a suggestion to make to Mr. Thatcher (and incidentally to all good reformers): Be sure your own liner is immaculate before you urge others to hurl their clothing into the mangle.

What I have tried to convey here is the thought that there are a considerable number of lawyers practicing before the bar whose methods are not too scrupulous. I am aware that when one of these "shysters" is brought forcibly to the attention of the profession, he is disbarred if evidence is sufficient to justify the action. And by the same token there are plenty of these oily birds who fatten off their clients and the loopholes of the law, and defeating the ends of justice at every turn of the road, never to be caught up with by the reputable faction of the profession.

I believe that the unscrupulous lawyer quickly becomes known for what he is, at least to the men of his calling in his own community. And if the honorable members of the bar so chose, I believe they would have little difficulty in curbing the nefarious activities of those barristers whose least handicap is honor.

It is easy to understand that an organization which could boast a membership 100 per cent ethical would have a better chance of purging the courts, the police system and the legislature than would the same organization to which clings, even in isolated spots, the stigma of "shyster."

An item of intense interest to this youthful writer chronicles the intention of Edward E. Console, 25-year-old law student of 655 Auzerais avenue, San Jose, to be a candidate for membership in the city council of San Jose at an election May 7.

He will, unfortunately, be defeated unless the youth of the big village get to work and put him over. It is a splendid opportunity for youth to assert itself, and I admire the intestinal fortitude young Mr. Console has displayed in his decision to give his contemporaries an opportunity to hilt youth into the saddle.

SPEAKER RAPS SELFISH GROUP WHICH WOULD KILL SCHOOLS

Mrs. Maude Clark Glasson of Los Altos, who was the guest speaker at the Monday meeting of the Country Woman's club, delivered an enlightening and convincing talk on the subject, "The Modern Trend In Education."

Mrs. Glasson has made a thorough study of influences at work to curtail the educational advantages of our children, to limit higher education to the wealthy classes, through the imposition of tuitions, fees and rentals. She showed how various groups and business organizations are working through legislation and insidious means to make our schools less effective by reducing vocational and cultural courses, instead of broadening them, so that our youth may be better able to cope with life and earn a livelihood.

All her statements are based on bona fide reports and records, and her message has proven so disquieting to the elements which she is uncovering that she has been repeatedly visited by their emissaries, but as she states nothing but proven facts, their efforts to induce her to desist have been futile.

It certainly behooves every voter to become informed as to the exact meaning of proposed legislation and issues and see that our educational system is maintained and improved, and not depleted or retarded.

Mrs. W. I. Merrill, acting chairman, introduced the speaker with a few well chosen remarks, showing the interest she herself had taken in the subject for discussion.

Mrs. N. O. Best presented a group of high school pupils who exemplified the worthwhileness of music in the school by playing two numbers, "Bells of St. Mary's" (Adams) and "On Miami's Shore." The group included David Bohrmann, violin; Clifton Crothers, clarinet; Edith Pyle, cello; Reed Hall, chimes; Jeanette Wellington, piano.

Mrs. Glasson remarked that instead of "fads and frills" it was "facts and thrills."

Mrs. G. E. Jeffers assisted in arranging the room which was decorated attractively with a long basket of nasturtiums, vases of blue iris and pink valerium, and a bowl of beautiful tulips.

Announcement of the County Federation meeting to be held here Friday, April 27, was made at the business meeting. The hours of the sessions could not be stated at that time. Reservations for the luncheon which will be served by a group of the Congregational guild at the church, may be made with Mrs. C. W. Shumway, Gen'l. Delivery, Campbell, or Mrs. C. E. Farman, Tel. Campbell 12-W.

Mrs. A. W. Johnson and Mrs. C. H. Whitman were appointed to serve with the representatives from the Pundita circle on the reception committee in the morning and Mrs. E. R. Kennedy and Mrs. Freeman Howes in the afternoon.

The club decided to hold an indoor May Day party on Tuesday, May 1, to raise money for the Student Loan fund of the County Federation.

Cards and other games will afford diversions and simple refreshments will be served. Admission 25 (Continued on Page Three)

Helen Stray Has Paper In U. S. C. Social Magazine

In "Sociology and Social Research," an international magazine published at the University of Southern California, there appears among the list of contributors the name of Helen Stray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stray of Campbell.

Miss Stray's paper, "Leadership Traits of Girls," is evidently the result of considerable research, a large part of her information gleaned from replies to questionnaires sent to 30 selected girls' camp directors of the Pacific coast region. Her own experiences as leader of various girls' camp groups proved of value in the discussion.

The author has been doing post graduate work at the southern university this winter.

C OF C HEARS TWO ON STATE FARM BUREAU

At the regular meeting of Campbell chamber of commerce Monday evening presided over by President Harry C. Smith, representatives of the state farm bureau spoke on the value of that organization to rural communities.

R. W. Blackburn, president of the farm bureau, spoke on the federal agricultural adjustment act, and W. E. McLaughlin explained in detail what the bureau is prepared to do for its members. The men are trying to increase the bureau's membership in this county.

Pundita Circle Hears Discussion National Trends

At a meeting of Pundita circle held last week at the home of Mrs. L. J. Carboni assistant hostesses and program committee were Mrs. Wendell Thomas and Miss Helah Laird.

A business meeting early in the afternoon was directed by the president, Mrs. D. H. Cramer. Reports of the County Federation of Women's clubs meeting held recently in San Jose were given, and the following nominating committee was appointed: Mrs. M. A. Standish, Mrs. G. W. Burrow and Mrs. Allegra Wood.

A salute to the flag and the singing of "America" was led by Miss Helah Laird, chairman of the program committee. Wendell Thomas was then presented, and discussed national affairs in an address entitled, "Where Are We Going?"

A social hour and refreshments followed the lecture hour. A large attendance enjoyed the afternoon, as did the following guests: Mrs. Katherine Nichols of Sacramento, Mrs. Lloyd Clendenen of Santa Monica, and Mrs. Carboni's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Eustace Parsons.

The next meeting of the club will be held April 25 at Community hall and will be annual guest day. Hostesses for this event will be Mrs. A. C. Anderson, Mrs. L. B. Davidson and Mrs. Allegra Wood.

Teachers Laud Press' Attitude On Education

The editor of this enterprising little journal has for years fought the battle of the teacher against unfair opposition to the existing system of free and liberal education. I have always believed that my efforts, with a few exceptions, were unnoticed and unsung.

The following communication from the Santa Clara county Teachers' association, then, is extremely gratifying to the pardonable ego with which I view my work in behalf of the public schools—for teachers and students alike.

R.H.K.

April 15, 1934

Dear Sir:

In the last meeting of the Santa Clara Teachers Association it was moved and carried that a vote of thanks be extended your paper for the open minded attitude towards the vital questions of public education.

At the present time when education is confronted with drastic and selfish curtailments, it is a great source of satisfaction to all interested in the welfare of the boys and girls of the State of California to find such fair discussions of our democratic system of free public schools.

Very sincerely yours,
Grace B. Poole

Thielke; tumbling demonstration by the low 6th grade, and an address at 8:40 by Dr. John C. Almack, professor of education at Stanford university.

It is urged by local educators that parents and others interested would do the cause of education an immense amount of good by planning to attend one or both of these instructive programs.

At the high school, while there will be no particular program nor no particular day set aside for the observance of Public Schools Week, Principal D. H. Cramer announces that all classes will be open for public inspection throughout the entire week, and that the faculty joins him in urging that parents and others avail themselves of the opportunity to acquaint themselves with the activities of the high school.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

For the first time in four years, the American farmer, during 1933, made as much income as his hired hand!

But in each of the three preceding years—1930, '31, '32—the income of farm operators, after deduction of production costs, fell far below the average wage paid to hired farm labor, though the farmer carried all the risk and responsibility which the laborer did not share.

Such is the illuminating view of the farmer's side of the farm labor problem presented by the United States department of agriculture in a comparative analysis of income and wages for last year.

It is a phase of the problem, incidentally, which is especially deserving of consideration at this particular time, due to recent agitation growing out of farm wage scales and strikes and riots in various sections of the state.

Nor should the farmer disregard labor's side of the picture. If California crops are to be harvested this year without disorder and with the greatest possible good for the greatest number, there must be a sensible application of the policy of "live and let live" in arbitrating wage differences. Violence and distrust—on either side—can have no other effect than to aggravate the problem.

California farmers, during more prosperous years, evidenced their good faith in dealing with farm labor by paying the highest scale in the United States.

With few exceptions, they are still evidencing their good faith by paying their workers as much or more than their own income.

Typifying the condition in the agricultural industry throughout the nation, the federal report shows that during 1932 farm income provided no return on investment and fell short by nearly $1,200,000,000 of paying the farm family for their labor even at the reduced wage rates for hired men.

And during 1933, with a boost of $1,240,000,000 in farm income as compared with 1932, the farmer barely reached an equality with his workers.

Gross income for the year was still $5,560,000,000 less than the return in 1929, and buying of farm equipment, fertilizer, etc., was virtually at a standstill, due to lack of operating capital.

Indicating that the farmer is limiting himself to actual necessities, in common with his laborers, the federal analysis reveals that expenditures for farm machinery, tractors, and repairs in 1932 were only about 16 per cent of 1929 expenditures, and for automobiles and trucks only 15 per cent of 1929 buying.

"This sharp curtailment in purchases of machinery and repairs on buildings," reports the government agency, "means that farmers are using up their capital equipment. And if it is long continued, it will tend to restrict farm production."

Ability to pay—rather than willingness to pay—has been the dominant factor in forcing reductions in farm wages during the last few years, as any impartial analysis of the facts will demonstrate.

A recognition of this simple fact by labor will do much to make for a friendlier and more profitable relationship between the farmer and the farm worker.

And a recognition, in turn, by the farmer that his laborers are entitled to better wages—when he can pay them—will solve the prob-

THE MAN WHO WROTE A WOODEN CHECK

An interesting story is told of Joseph C. Palmer, well-known California financier of the early 1850's.

One day, while visiting a lumber yard, Palmer had occasion to write a check for $20,000. Neither pen nor checkbook was at hand. But Palmer solved the difficulty with a true pioneer's informality and resourcefulness.

Picking up a freshly cut shingle, he wrote the check upon it with a bit of red chalk. And it was characteristic of the period that when this singular check reached the bank, it was duly honored for $20,000.

By contrast, modern Californians are seldom without their checkbooks. And many thousands of them carry their checking accounts at the convenient American Trust Company branches.

HAY FEVER

Not long ago pedestrians in a downtown street of a certain California city craned their necks to watch an individual who seemed to be conducting some strange performance on the 18th story balcony of the city hall.

The performer was a medical worker. He was setting up vaseline-coated plates upon which to catch pollen from grasses, trees and shrubs blown by the breeze.

His task formed but one small phase of a gigantic task, that of catching "on the fly," classifying and estimating as to quantity the numerous atmospheric pollens common to this particular city in one year's time. He was one of a vast army enlisted in the war against hay fever.

Since the beginning of civilization man has fought hay fever, but with indifferent success until recent years.

The pollen that blew in from the fields and pastures of ancient Egypt brought hay fever to kings and commoners, rich and poor alike.

It has been estimated that in the United States today 5,000,000 persons suffer from seasonal or perennial hay fever. But there is hope for the millions of today, where there was none for the tribes of early Egypt. The American medical profession has taken the lead in this ages-old battle.

Great advances have come within the last ten years, one of the most notable being the recognition of food allergy as one cause of hay fever. That is to say, not only the microscopic pollen but the food one eats may bring about the symptoms of hay fever or asthma.

Others develop the symptoms in a household where a dog or cat is kept, and one physician reported that relief was obtained for a child simply by doing away with feather pillows.

Diagnosis for pollen sensitivity is made possible through skin testing. The modern allergist rubs dry pollen or extracts of pollen into tiny scratches upon the arm, or else injects the extracts into the skin.

A hive-like swelling around the scratches indicates the pollen to which the patient is sensitive.

By this method, when the pollen to which the patient is sensitive is ascertained, hypodermic injections of the extract of this pollen are given in increasing strength until immunity develops. This treatment is continued through the season in which this particular pollen prevails.

Some hay fever patients have exaggerated symptoms because of their intolerance of certain foods. Men and women employed in factories where certain dusts are found may develop the symptoms.

On Saturday evening, April 21, We and Our Neighbors club of the Union district will hold a public card party. Mrs. Frederick Battee is chairman in charge of the affair. Refreshments will be served.

KIWANIS NOTES By Heck

Local clubbers were treated to a travelogue yesterday by none other than the chairman of the day, Ralph H. Hyde, who recently completed a 2,400 mile jaunt through the southwest, accompanied by his wife and son.

Mr. Hyde illustrated his talk with specimens of rock from the Grand canyon, Bryce canyon, and elsewhere, and with moving pictures of all points visited, which included, besides those mentioned, the Hoover dam at Boulder.

Next week's program will be either musical, under the watchful eye of D. H. Cramer, or a discussion of the federal farm bureau.
